

I urge the FCC not to give in to telemarketers to weaken New Jersey's Do Not Call List legislation. I am a working mother who treasures being able to spend some peaceful time with my family over dinner and be able to assist my children with homework in the evening. The drop in unwanted calls has been dramatic since we signed up with the NJ Do Not Call List and I dread the thought that we may slip back to a system that allows those terrible intrusions back into our lives. In fact, I would like to add a Do Not Fax list to our legislation. Why am I paying for the advertising of unwanted faxes -- my paper and my printer ink is being used for the marketer's faxes. Calling the remove from fax number does nothing to lessen the number of faxes.
